looks like there is no justice in the world anymore! make them open up (release source code) their document file format. that will level the playing field on the corporate desktop market. i've pretty much approved of everything the bush administration has done so far except this. if i make enough money can i break the law with little or no consequences? waste of time and money if this is all the doj can do. just my 2 cents from the voting public. mark collister (mcollister4@home.com)
